The Blue Duck Gallery March Newsletter

Rules of the Recession

- 1) Do not mention 'IT' in our shop. We are a fun loving and optimistic group at The Blue Duck Gallery and there will be no dreary talk around here!
- 2) Shower together. It's cheaper & far more fun
- 3) Think Happy, Think Positive, Think Slowly. You have plenty of time
- 4) Continue breathing. DO NOT hold your breath until it is all over
- 5) Cuddle bankers. After all it was just a silly mistake
- 6) VAT. Save up 2.5% now for later. Don't spend it all on sweets
- 7) Think local. Buy, eat, repair, sell, marry – do it all locally and make Caversham a shiny, happy place

Brancaster Staithe, North Norfolk by Paul Gunn

If you have been thinking to yourself that the paintings at The Blue Duck Gallery are all looking rather bright at the moment, don't adjust your glasses, we have cleaned the windows – and the shop, and moved everything around, and found lots of gorgeous new stock. All in all we're extremely happy and rather over-excitable!

Over the past week we have received new, funky, leather shoes for 6-12 month olds (other sizes are available to order), new out- or indoor animal sculptures from Karen Williams – which would make lovely Mother's Day presents but would also be an interesting alternative for a Christening present, new spring table linens and cushions from Scandinavian company Linum, new glassware from Will Shakspeare (also great for Mother's Day) and a stunning collection of Wedding Jewellery from Karen Van Hoff.

Still to come in the next couple of weeks we will have a new range of jewellery by a Welsh company called Noa. Their jewellery is made from silver and incorporates tiny ceramic, hand painted tiles. Prices will start from £11 so it is a very affordable range but no less beautiful and unusual than the other work we have. We will also be bringing in some polka dotted pottery and more linens.

The children's clothes are going down a storm and as I write this letter I'm trying to decide which new ranges we will have in next to tickle your fancy – there are some wonderful options out there and we are open to suggestions...
